THE HOME OWNER

"That little place yonder in the blossoms, where trees wave welcome—that's my home."

It is the true home maker—the real home lover—who says that, coming from the day's tasks, with all the pride of home ownership.

And that is the pride that's left by the thousand owners of the homes of city streets, or the little home places that help to brighten city borders where a greener world begins.

It's the pride of proprietorship—life's happiness summed up in a brief sentence: "That's my home!"

Business enterprise builds cities, but it builds them around homes.

"A city of homes" is the phrase that awakens interest everywhere. And the age of ownership is coming to be the wonder of the time, with youth looking providently to the future—planning for it, working for it, with all youth's hope and strength! The humblest shelter may hold happiness enough if the one who walks the way that leads to it can say, in the heart's pride: "That's my home!"—Atlanta Constitution.

AUDITORIUM NECESSARY TO PROGRESS OF MONETT

The holding of two high grade and successful hog sales in our community in the last few days demonstrated the needs of a community building and showed why every citizen of Monett and surrounding territory should be enthusiastic for such a building and willing to take as many shares as he can to secure the building. The lack of a suitable place was a hindrance both to the owners of the stock and those who wanted to buy. A community building is needed so good things can be brought to this community. It will be a center for a large territory. Because it can be used for all purposes it will pay a profit, and stock holders will get a profit from their shares. If this community is to progress such a building is necessary.

DISREGARD.

"Why do you insist that the farm is not properly considered? Everybody is talking about the importance of agricultural production."

"Maybe it's something like professional jealousy," replied Farmer Corns. "We go to the county fair expecting to have all kinds of a fuss over the prize pigs and pumpkins and find that the whole crowd has pushed off to the trotting races and the movie pictures."

Indefinite.

"They're engaged."
 "When are they going to marry?"
 "That's very indefinite. She has agreed to wait until he earns enough to support a wife, and at the present cost of living that's not what you'd call a very bright prospect."

Inquiry.

"Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" inquired the quizzical person.
 "Please don't start that!" protested Senator Sorghum. "We already have enough investigating committees figuring on questions that'll never be answered."

LUCKY GIRL.

"I say, old chap, I hear you are engaged to Miss Sweet. Is that true?"

"Quite true, old top. Isn't she the lucky girl?"

The Real Reason.

Some reasons landlords raise their rents are said and some are funny. But few in truth have said it is because they want the money.

Try, Try Again.

"Has your wife a sense of humor?"
 "I don't think so," replied Mr. Pyne. "I have told her the same joke over and over and I don't believe she has laughed at it more than twice in her whole life."

A Puzzle.

"This gambling in stocks by trusted employees reminds me of the old beheading puzzles."
 "How so?"
 "Behind speculation and what remains?"

Tyranny of Fashion.

"Do you think your wife will always want to vote?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton; "unless, of course, something happens to make it appear that voting has gone out of style."

The Difficulty.

"I don't know exactly how to answer this letter."
 "Why, what is the trouble about it for such a ready correspondent as you?"
 "It's anonymous."

Economies.

"Are you studying to be a politician?"
 "No," replied the patient citizen. "The world doesn't need so many political economists now. What it demands now is personal economists."

The Tempestuous Telephone.

"You never scold over the telephone."
 "No. The operator has to use the machine all day long. If she can keep her temper, I guess I can."

Indefinite.

She—Always the same answer when I want to do a little shopping! How long do you expect to be without money to give me?
 He—As long as I'm short.

The Imitative Juvenile.

"You used some very rough language to your playmates, Bobbie."
 "Yes'm," admitted Bobbie. "We've got a new game. We're playin' politics."

STRENUOUS WORK.

Bug—My that Alpine climbing is dangerous.

A Forgotten Adage.

Where is that maxim's warning thrill Which in our youth we knew:
 "Old Satan finds some mischief still For idle hands to do!"

The Idea.

"Pop, why do they call in some places a political party the Extreme Left?"
 "Because when they are left, that is the way they are left."

Baldness of the Amateur.

"What makes you think our friend knows very little about running a railroad?"
 "The fact," replied Mr. Dustin Stax "that he is so willing to try it."
